Col. Fuller, the New York correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune, writes as follows, approving the approaching visit of the Prince of Wales:

The Prince of Wales, the oldest son of Queen Victoria, and heir apparent to the British throne, is just now "being prepared" for a visit to Canada, where he will probably arrive about the first of June. The Prince, whom I saw among the "sights" and sightseers of Rome, less than a year ago, is an intelligent, amiable, fair looking, accomplished young gentleman, who submits with patient grace to the social restraints of his royal position.

Unlike "the Prince" of Falsstut's day, the future king of the great Empire on which the sun never sets, instead of wasting his time and substance in riotous living, is studiously preparing himself for an intelligent comprehension of the high duties that await him. He has already visited most of the leading capitals of Europe, in company with the best educated gentlemen of England, and now the voyage to America is proposed, as an additional chapter in the Prince's education. The Canadians are all alive with enthusiasm, and the reception ceremonies will be got up on the most magnificent scale. The benighted reign of Queen Victoria has greatly intensified the attachment of the British subject to his government, by adding the element of gallantry to the feeling of loyalty; and since the crown of England has been shorn of its executive prerogatives until the monarchy has become "limited" to a mere name, one can readily sympathize with a people whose beautiful devotion to their "gracious Queen" makes them pray that they may always have a woman at the throne.

The question begins to be agitated whether the Prince of Wales will extend his travels to the United States? Of course he will, and it is time that Congress and our city authorities should pass resolutions inviting the Prince to visit us. He should be treated by our government as the potentate, in esse, of one of the greatest powers of the earth; the legitimate, political and historical representative of the people of England. The honor bestowed upon the son and heir of "British glory" should be marked in dignity as the diplomatic intercourse between the two nations, equally worthy of host or guest.

SPECULATIVE WEALTH.—A Washoe correspondent of the Alta California, gives the following graphic description of the value of speculative wealth:

"Every thing bears the appearance of California in 1849. Red shirts and grey are moving to and fro with blankets, pick and pan. In the towns, rude houses are crowded together. The saloons are crowded. Gambling is conducted openly—faro and monte tables are in active operation in every camp, and heavy betting indicates an abundance of money. However, there is more prospective wealth than present coin. Men have claims in their own estimation, worth thousands of dollars, without a cent in their pockets. Everybody talks rich. I have seen no man yet who thinks himself worth less than $50,000, but I have seen a good many get trampled for drinks and meals.

A TEXAS PAPER RATHER SEVERE ON SAM HOUSTON.—The State Gazette at Austin, Texas, comes down rather severely on Sam Houston, in a long article from which we take the following:

Tasty in temper, crafty in policy and shallow in information; an adept in the drollery of the broadest humor, he stands before the country without a rival in his favorite department of abusive, disparaging and sarcastic epithets. Riddled in the federal senate, and of course desolate of influence in that august body, he has a great facility for adopting his tone and manner to the exigencies of popular opinion, and hence his course has been marked by the most extraordinary vicissitudes of defeat and success.

Vain as a woman, ostentatious as a Broadway dandy, he was never so happy as when a senator he daily promulgated Pennsylvania avenue with a leopard skin vest upon his broad chest, and a showy Mexican blanket upon his sturdy shoulders. Fond of admiration and devoted to adulation so far as the requirements of court etiquette and effect would impose duties upon him he would fill, magnificently, the imperial throne of a pompous Caesar.

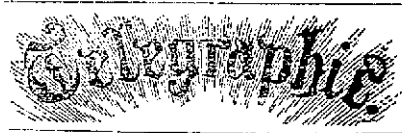

As his ready and fluent vilification of men and measures sinks far below the noble and eloquent indignation of Wise, whose superb invective has won a world's admiration, so in the robust strength and vigor of a disciplined intellect, he falls beneath the exalted level of Hunter or Green. Toombs or Crittenden. This venerable politician can boast of little information, but has an abiding confidence in the weakness or foibles of mankind. Accordingly he has no burning or logic to convince, no understanding, not relies upon the stubborn tenacity of his assertions upon the acts of history, of intimidation and the potency of selfish considerations.

THE BIRD TRADE OF NEW YORK.—

"Hannay" writes to the Mobile Register: Early this morning, I started out to procure a pair of little green parakeets. I found them scarce and high priced. For a pair scarcely larger than Java sparrows, $8 was asked. I visited five large bird stores devoted to nothing else. Each contained thousands of Canary birds. Each bird has its own cage. One bird store had at least 2,500 live Canary birds, each in its own little cage. It would seem impossible to give seed and water to each bird and its inmate. Yet it is done, not precisely in the way that our country birds are reared in the state prison, and over a thousand bottles shut at the same moment. The cages are tied together, and an adroit feeder will put seed in the box of each cage, and water in the jar very speedily. He will feed 1,000 birds an hour.

These Canary birds are supposed by unsophisticated buyers to have come from the Harz Mountains, in Germany, via Havre, France, or down the Rhine to Rotterdam. I, however, am of the opinion that the millions are reared on the champagne districts of France. They will sell at a high rate, and the wholesale price is $2.50. But they must be males and singers. Females are sold at $1 each. Java sparrows, parrots, mockingbirds, robin red-breasts, and rice birds, make up the main stock of the bird stores. You cannot get cages at the same place where the birds are sold. To get a nice cage you visit the regular bird cage stores, where you can procure a vast assortment. Java sparrows sell at $1 each. A hoy-proprietor now of one of the bird stores I visited this morning, and worth $50,000—commenced his career peddling a pair of Canaries. The bird merchants take orders for any kind of bird mentioned by Audubon. They will send to the Philippine Islands for Birds of Paradise, to Charleston for a turkey buzzard, or to Illinois for a white crow.

A severe and protracted drought prevails throughout the south. The Charleston Mercury says: "Flowers and early fruits, strawberries, etc., in this section, are crisped and burned up with the atmosphere varying from 80 to 90 degrees, and no rain—not even a fall of dew. This drought seems to be universal throughout the southern country."

REPORTED FOR THE MORNING GAZETTE.

BY WISCONSIN STATE TELEGRAPH LINE, Office in Union Passenger Depot.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

CHARLESTON, April 27.

Mr. Avery, although representing 15 slave and 2 free states denies that any feeling of sectionalism influenced the majority.

Mr. Clark, of Mo., although assigned the majority report, says he did not and would not vote for the third resolution which is:

Resolved, That it is the duty of the federal government to protect, when necessary, the rights of persons and property on the high seas, in the territories or wherever else its constitutional authority extends.

Mr. Avery called attention to the fact that the majority report represents 127 certain democratic electoral votes, while the minority does not represent one electoral vote that can be claimed as certain. He regarded squatter sovereignty as subversive of the rights of the south as congressional intervention would be. He classed it with the Wilnot proviso, being equally as subversive of southern rights.

The convention met at 10 o'clock.

Mr. H. M. presented a series of resolutions, favoring the admission of delegates from Kansas, who claimed seats on the ground that they would be admitted into the Union before the election. Referred to the committee on national committee.

An announcement was made that the committee on platform would not be ready to report for an hour, and a temporary recess or promenade was taken for that time. The floor and western galleries being crowded with ladies there was a clatter of tongues, and peal after peal of merriment going on in the galleries, and the speaker's voice of excitement of the audience.

After recess, printed copies of the majority platform report were scattered over the convention.

One of the minority reports was signed B. T. Butler in behalf of the minority, which merely reaffirms the Cincinnati platform, declaring democratic principles unchanged in their nature when applied to the same subject matter, and only recommends in addition to the Cincinnati platform a resolution recommending the protection of all its citizens, whether native or naturalized. The principle minority report, however, is signed by Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, R. Island, Connecticut, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, New York and Pennsylvania.

The points are as follows:

1st. Affirming the Cincinnati platform.

2d. That all kinds of property are judicial in character, and the democracy pledge themselves to the decisions of the supreme court on the subject.

3d. Ample protection to the citizens, native or naturalized, at home or abroad.

4th. Plugging governmental aid to the Pacific railroad.

5th. Provers the acquisition of Cuba on terms honorable to ourselves and just to Spain.

6th. That all state resistance to the fugitive slave law is revolutionary and subversive of the constitution.

The majority report is in substance as already telegraphed.

At 1:30 P. M. the convention re-assembled. The majority report was read by Mr. Avery who was instructed to say that entire unanimity did not prevail on a portion of the resolutions. The first and third resolutions in relation to slavery in the territories, and the duty of the general government to protect the rights of persons, were adopted by a large majority of the convention.

The Indiana resolution in relation to the fugitive slave law, and the fourth in relation to the naturalized citizens, were adopted unanimously.

The 5th in favor of the acquisition of Cuba was adopted without division.

The two minority reports were presented by Mr. Butler of Massachusetts and Mr. Payne of Ohio. The latter stated that his report, although a minority one, represented 172 electoral votes, whilst the majority report represented 127 electoral votes.

Mr. Johnson of Indiana inquired how many of the electoral votes represented by the minority reports can be depended on for the democratic nominees. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. Payne could not say, nor could he speak for or say how many states will vote with the majority. Mr. Payne offered his platform as a substitute for the whole, and a Massachusetts delegate proposed another set.

All the reports having been presented, Mr. Avery addressed the convention claiming that he represented 17 democratic states of the Union. He alluded to the fact that Mexico and Cuba would inevitably, with Central America, form a part of the Union, and with the popular sovereignty doctrine, as proclaimed in the minority report, no slaveholder could dare to enter territory with his slave. It was said that northern men did not like to be thrown into association with slaveholders, and he appealed to gentlemen to correct that error and to prove to the south that the democratic party at the north entertained no such sentiment. There is distrust among the masses of the people of their northern allies. We sympathize with you when you are called daughters at the north, and we ask you to give us the evidences that our sympathy is well placed.

Mr. Payne of Ohio, addressed the convention in behalf of the minority report; he did not desire any personal victory, but he represented believed that in the harmonious sentiment of these difficulties, despite the existence of "chicken-heartedness" and the prosperity and perpetuity of the Union.

The democracy of the north have stood by the south in good faith, there never had been but one constitution put upon slavery, and the slavery clauses of the Cincinnati platform, and he challenged any man to show that it had ever been differently construed, even on the floors of Congress.

Mr. Payne read to the convention the opinion of Secretary Toney, and Vice President Breckinridge, against any measure to legislate slavery into the territories, and that the people of each territory shall settle the matter for themselves, and be admitted into the Union with or without slavery as they may determine, and said that he could show that every distinguished southern statesman since 1850, had planted himself on the squatter sovereignty platform of non-intervention by Congress.

He quoted also from Messrs. Hunter, Toombs, Mason, and other southern democratic statesmen, maintaining the same ground of non-intervention, and concluded by saying, we cannot recede from this doctrine without personal dishonor, so help us God we will never abandon this principle. [Sensation.]

Special Assemblage from Charleston.—An intense excitement exists, a large crowd collected in front of the Mills House, listening to discussion upon the platform of the New York delegation.

The delegates were driven out by the police. A minority or compromise report will be adopted by 150 majority; five states will be nominated Davis or Lane and Wood.

Douglas' friends predict his nomination to-morrow. He has 23 votes in the New York delegation, including Dean Richmond, Belmont, Stevens, Ludlow, Church and the western members, and Cochrane, Butterworth, Fuller and Barlow are against him, but the delegation votes a unit.

The New York delegation have rejected the platform by a large majority; all but Rynders, Fowler, Leverett and a few officers held the minority report, for which John Cochrane voted. A committee was appointed to prepare a New York platform, to be submitted as a substitute. Pennsylvania and New York did not sign the minority report. They are preparing a substitute.

The following is the resolution of Mr. Cochrane of New York, which he proposes to offer as a substitute for all the other propositions, in addition to the Cincinnati platform:

Resolved, That the several states of the Union are under the constitution, and that the people thereof are entitled to free and undisturbed possession, and enjoyment of their rights of person and property in the common territories, and any attempt by congress or territorial legislature to annul, abridge, or discriminate against any such equality of rights, would be an invasion of the rights of the people to the constitution, and that it is the duty of the federal government, whenever such rights are violated, to afford the necessary, proper, and constitutional remedies for such violation.

Mr. Payne's concluding appeal to the south was very powerful and was listened to with great attention. He urged them not to destroy the democratic party for a mere abstraction.

Mr. H. M. of Massachusetts who reported the Cincinnati platform pure and simple, addressed the convention in view of his inability to agree with either minority or majority. The clause relative to the protection of slave property on the seas, he cautioned them would be regarded by their opponents as an attempt to re-open the slave trade. Mr. Butler in alluding to the remarks of Mr. Johnson, of Indiana, with regard to non-democratic states, was like the kettle calling the pot black.

Mr. Johnson replied that Maryland had never countenanced and encouraged resistance to the fugitive slave law, and had maintained a national position in the Union.

Mr. Butler would say that Massachusetts had never been under a rule that prevented a man from voting his sentiment for fear of the bludgeon or the bullet. [Loud and prolonged applause.]

Mr. Johnson desired to reply, but Mr. Butler would not yield; saying, however, that he did not blame the democratic party for the condition of affairs. He knew they did all they could to resist it.

Mr. Butler concluded with an appeal to leave no ground alone.

The convention took a recess until 4 o'clock.

The convention re-assembled at 4 o'clock this P. M.

Mr. Bayard, of Delaware, presented another series of resolutions, as follows—the first affirms the Cincinnati platform. The second declares that territorial governments are provisional and temporary, and that during their existence all citizens of the United States have an equal right to settle in the territories, without their rights of either person or property being disturbed or impaired by congressional and territorial legislation. The third declares that it is the duty of the government to protect the rights of persons and property on the high seas, in the territories or wherever else its constitutional authority extends. The fourth declares that when the settlers in a territory have adequate population to form a state constitution, the right of sovereignty commences, and being consummated by their admission into the Union, they stand upon equal footing with citizens of other states, and that a state thus organized is to be admitted into the Union as a free state, or as a slave state.

Mr. Barksdale, of Mississippi, proceeded with a violent but eloquent southern speech. He declared that when the democratic party dies the constitution will die with it; that if the party lack in its duty now, it will be more than if defeated at the polls.

Gov. King, of Missouri, addressed the convention in favor of harmony, and counseling delegates who came here instructed to do the best that could be done for the democratic party. The majority report has a sting of death in it. He would vote for the minority report as a substitute. All the people want is the Cincinnati platform without any additions or subtractions.

He spoke of the black republicans as men who have the same men as men usually are, and said they would ridicule their majority platform as Jannus faced and contradictory. So far as Missouri is concerned, they can carry it even clothed with this deadly sting, as they always did it blind for the democratic nominee; but he could plainly see that his border neighbors would be destroyed by its venom.

Mr. King alluded in the course of his argument to the distinguished statesman of Illinois, and each time was greeted with deafening applause. The northern democracy took a violent but eloquent speech as a sting of death in it. He would vote for the minority report as a substitute. Janesville Public Schools.

Abstract of reports for the week ending April 27, 1880.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT.

Table with 4 columns: School, Number of Pupils, Number of Teachers, and Average Percentage of Attendance.

Average percentage of attendance, 93.6.

Mr. Editor:—I suppose most of your readers have seen the notice of a concert to be given by Mr. D. D. Wilson, (which was published a day or so ago) on Tuesday evening next, the 1st inst. As I have had the privilege of attending a rehearsal, I can well say to all who would wish to hear a good concert, and can fully appreciate good music, ought now to avail themselves of this opportunity.

A CONSTANT READER.

As many of our citizens have attended some of Mr. Wilson's concerts, they can judge fully of his musical talent, and can expect a good evening's entertainment.

LIFE INSURANCE.—Those desiring this safe and cheapest protection for their families, can secure it in our Wisconsin family plan. It has already become, in reality, a state institution, having agents and policies among the best business men in all the principal towns in the state. It is no longer a matter of doubt that life insurance can be conducted as well in Wisconsin as in Connecticut or any other eastern state.

Thus while duty demands that men should insure their lives, it also demands that they should keep their money for investment at home. Confident that our success has been more than equal to that of the most "unprecedentedly" successful company in the world, we cordially invite all our citizens to call at the office, southwest corner of Main and Wisconsin streets, and examine for themselves.

S. S. DAGGETT, Pres't.

A. W. KELLGROVE, Sec'y.

Messrs. P. H. & Marlow, produce dealers, and Capt. Geo. S. Dodge will receive applications for insurance in this home company, and will also be happy to give information as to the condition thereof, to any one desirous of being informed, in Janesville.
